Summer enrollment up by 1.8%

Some students prefer shorter sessions

By Melissa Guice
and Darcey Ralls
Staff Writers

OKCCC's summer enrollment numbers are up a notch over last summer's population.

The rise — a 1.8 percent increase — is due, in part, to the appeal of shorter sessions, said John Barker, director of research.

Many students agree.

"I basically just wanted to get the coursework over quicker," said Tommy Thomas, OKCCC chemical engineering major.

Barker said students also tend to fare better over the shorter terms, as well.

"It should be noted that it appears that students enter the shorter sessions, especially in the intersessions and fast track, with a heightened sense of commitment, which is one component of classroom success and satisfaction."

One of the factors of the overall enrollment increase is the increase in OKCCC's telecourse area of the distance education program.

Glenda Prince, OKCCC coordinator for distance education, said telecourse enrollment is at its highest — 531, a 20 percent increase over last summer.

Prince said the increase was a good jump over last year and that it was partly due to the flexibility and convenience of the courses that let students watch courses on television or on tapes in the school's library.

"The telecourse classes make it easier because I don't have to be here all the time. There's not a set schedule which helps out with having to work during the summer," said Jimmi Herell, OKCCC student.

"I'm taking a telecourse in Oklahoma History this summer," said Chad Gilbert, OKCCC

Leisurely Literature: OKCCC student Stacy Hall catches up on reading assignments for an English composition telecourse class she is taking this summer. Hall is taking the class as part of her required basic courses for a pre-occupational therapy degree. She said she hasn't yet decided on the emphasis for her major. All students should take note that fall enrollment is currently under way. Students may enroll by phone 682-2222, online at: <http://www.okc.cc.ok.us> or in person.

Regents elect chairman of the board

Dan Hardage says it is an honor to be able to serve the community

By Darcey Ralls
Staff Writer

Dan Hardage was recently elected Chairman of OKCCC's Board of Regents, succeeding former chair Dennis Clowers.

Hardage said he is ready for the challenge.

"Dennis Clowers did an excellent job in his position as chair," he said. "I hope that I can do equally as well," he said.

Hardage graduated from the U.S. Air Force Academy in 1959. He served in the Air Force, achieving a rank of captain, until 1965.

He worked as a senior engineer for Lucent Technologies for the next 30 years, retiring in 1996.

Hardage was appointed to the OKCCC Board of Regents in 1995 by Gov. Frank Keating.

Prior to this, he served as a member of the Western Heights School Board for eight years.

"It is really gratifying to be able to serve the community in this way," Hardage said. "It is quite an honor."

Hardage's seven-year term will end in April 2002.

Other board members are Lea Anderson, Darrel Lanier,

Helen Camey, G. David Casper, John Williams and Darrell McAllister.

OKCCC President Bob Todd said Hardage will serve the college well.

"Mr. Dan Hardage brings a wealth of experience to his role of Chairman of the Board of Regents.

"His professional experience in business, his previous service on a public school board and his commitment to OKCCC students combine to make him an outstanding chairman," Todd said.

An Oklahoma native, Hardage graduated from Elmore City High School and earned a master's degree at Oklahoma City University in 1974.

Hardage has lived in Oklahoma City for more than 30 years. He and his wife, Rosemary, have one son, Zachary.

Editorial and Opinion

Editorial

Forever and ever, Amen

Hannah, 5, closes her eyes very tightly as she makes a wish before blowing out the candles on her birthday cake.

Everyone asks her what she wished as the cake was being cut.

With a tear in her eye she said she wished her mommy and daddy were together again.

Justin, 8, told his teacher at church his biggest fear was not having daddy with them.

Two little boys sat on their grandma's lap and asked where daddy was and didn't he love them anymore.

Nathan, 12, was withdrawn and depressed thinking it was his fault mom and dad were not together.

It's time we start deciding if we really mean "I do."

Divorce is a very serious and hurtful word not only to the partners in the marriage, but to everyone their lives have touched.

Many individuals should never have said "I do" in the first place.

I will be the first to say "leave" if any type of abuse, drugs, or drinking is involved.

Perhaps if you are wise when you pick your life-long mate these insurmountable hurdles will never be an issue.

"I do" means I will live with you forever, even when money is tight, when evenings are long and hum drum, when the kids are crying and I'm tired and, most of all, when you're just plain grumpy.

When two people say "I do" they are taking two different backgrounds and all the excess baggage and merging them into a single background.

It is a never-ending cycle from generation to generation.

Opposites attract.

It's not easy to give and take when your way is the only way you have ever known.

Expect disagreements all your life, no matter who you say "I do" to.

Commitment is the missing ingredient in many marriages today.

Some folks even choose not to take a vow of "until death do us part."

Before you get angry and storm out without just cause, pray, seek guidance and counseling from the experts.

Many marriages could be saved if we would just count to 10 and stop hollering.

When you say "I do" remember, "I don't" cannot be an option.

College's handicapped provisions not up to par

To the Editor:

I am writing to express some displeasure with the facilities on campus. These issues relate to handicapped accessibility and need to be brought to the school's attention.

First, there is the elevator problem. If you are physically unable to use the stairs for transportation, it is next to impossible to get onto the elevator during the fall and spring semesters. In high school, the people who needed the elevator had a key. Giving approved students a key to the service elevator may be a solution OKCCC should look into.

Second, the college union only has one table designated for the handicapped. Also, it does not have a ramp onto the raised dining area (the cafe). These things get bothersome when there are several people in wheelchairs wanting their friends to sit with them, or when the main dining area is closed for some reason. Those people in wheelchairs get singled out and are unable to use the facilities available to "normal" students.

able to "normal" students.

Ramps are easy to build. I know. We have had to build quite a few since I became disabled. Also perhaps, there could be a second table put in the college union. This way, the handicapped can have friends even while eating.

Another problem in the college union is disrespect. There is a cart set up so people who are unable to reach the counter can get their flatware and other items. I won't name names this time, but I have seen people (from students to college employees) select the cart items for no reason. Please, respect the handicapped sign. They come in all different colors, but they still mean the same thing.

Third, the gym and swimming areas are great, but, if you have balance problems or are in a wheelchair, it is next to impossible to change clothes. There is no place in the locker rooms to do so. There are beds that raise and lower to different heights that people can use to change clothes. This has been brought up before and so far, I haven't heard anything about fixing it.

Last (for now), the automatic doors are sometimes not turned on. What is the use of having these things if you don't turn them on? It is a simple procedure — all you do is flip a switch and they work.

Comments and Reviews

Why blame guns when you can blame everything else?

To the Editor:

I am upset almost every time I read an editorial written by Melissa Guice.

The editorial on women cussing? Please.

The one this time was on gun control being the answer and posting the Ten Commandments wrong. How much sense does this make? I have a 16-year-old son who is active in church, goes to Oklahoma City public schools, and is a member of Junior ROTC. They shoot guns almost weekly on the rifle range under U.S. Grant High School. These kids are being taught valuable gun safety.

I fought with myself on what to write about this issue because I believe that morals are the key and that more controls on us as citizens of the United States of America are not.

I received an e-mail from a church member forwarded to me from what Paul Harvey stated on his show (when I don't know) but it is just right to me. I couldn't have said it better.

Here goes:

For the life of me, I can't understand what could have gone wrong in Littleton, Colo. If only the parents had kept their children away from the guns, we wouldn't have had such a tragedy. Yeah, it must have been the guns.

It couldn't have been because of half of our children are being raised in broken homes.

It couldn't have been because our children get to spend an average of 30 seconds in meaningful conversation with their parents each day. After all, we give our children quality time.

It couldn't have been because we treat our children as pets and our pets as children.

"I am upset almost every time I read an editorial written by Melissa Guice."

— Mike Reeves
OKCCC Student

It couldn't have been because we place our children in day care centers where they learn their socialization skills among their peers under the law of the jungle while employees who have no vested interest in the children look on and make sure that no blood is spilled.

It couldn't have been because we allow our children to watch, on average, seven hours of television a day filled with the glorification of sex and violence that isn't fit for adult consumption.

It couldn't have been because we allow our children to enter virtual worlds in which, to win the game, one must kill as many opponents as possible in the most sadistic way possible.

It couldn't have been because we have sterilized and contracepted our families down to sizes so small that the children we do have are so spoiled with material things that they come to equate the receiving of the material with love.

It couldn't have been because our children, who historically have been seen as a blessing from God, are now being viewed as either a mistake created when contraception fails or inconveniences that parents try to raise in their spare time.

It couldn't have been because our nation is the world leader in developing a culture of death in which 20 million to 30 million babies have been killed by abortion.

It couldn't have been because we give two-year prison sentences to teenagers who kill their newborns.

It couldn't have been because our school systems teach the children that they are nothing but glorified apes who have evolutionized out of some primordial soup of mud by teaching evolution as fact and by handing out condoms as if they were candy.

It couldn't have been because we teach our children that there are no laws of morality that transcend us, that everything is relative and that actions don't have consequences. What the heck — the president gets away with it.

Nah, it must have been the guns.

Thanks for a good weekly paper, I sure would like to see this hit the press.

An alternative view is always good.

I never met a man, or woman, I didn't like.

'Wild, Wild West' turns out to be dull, dull mess

Nothing — not even an all-star cast like Will Smith of "Men in Black," Oscar-winning Kevin Klein and Kenneth Branagh of "Much Ado about Nothing" could save this movie.

Based on the '60s television show of the same name, "Wild, Wild West" stars Smith as James T. West, a shoot-now-ask-questions-later government agent.

Klein is also an agent, but with a very different style. He is a master of disguise and a mechanical genius.

Selma Hayek stars as Rita Escobar, whose only purpose in life is to show her cleavage and get cheap laughs.

The only high point of the movie is the villain Dr. Arliss Loveless (Branagh), a bitter Southern patriot, who lost his lower half in the war and rebuilds himself as half man/half wheelchair.

While the film's promotional website (www.wildwildwest.net) terms the film "a fast-paced adventure sparkling with comedy, action, and fantasy," it actually comes nowhere near this glowing description.

Infinitely slow-paced, "Wild Wild West" sparkles like a lump of coal, with no action or comedy and the only fantasy is that this movie is any good.

Smith, who usually oozes with charm and wit, is a former slave turned government agent, (Can we say stretch?) who seeks revenge on Loveless for a massacre in which his family was killed.

With such a serious characterization, Smith's trademark charm is hidden behind a scowl and a cowboy hat.

Loveless's "mechanology" brings to mind the childhood erector set in the hands of an evil wacko.

Also, one wonders where the comedy and action went in this sci-fi action comedy. In its place are cheap jokes and excess sexual innuendo.

Artemus Gordon, (Klein) an 1800s Inspector Gadget, is also a government agent. Gordon along with West (Smith) try to stop Loveless (Branagh) from overthrowing the United States.

West and Gordon's headquarters, throughout the movie, is the Wanderer — a train filled with all sorts of mechanical gadgets.

Basically, "Wild Wild West" is a pseudo-comedy filled with overt sexual humor and non-essential violence.

It has a great cast but wastes their talent with a script that falls flat on its face.

Don't waste your money on the movie, buy the soundtrack. It's a mix of rap, R&B and Latin dance music.

It includes Smith's new hit single, "Wild Wild West," and possibly the best track on the CD, "Bailamos," by Latin sensation Enrique Iglesias.

On the popcorn scale, "Wild Wild West" rates down there with the kernels.

It keeps giving you more stars, more special effects, more flesh, but with a plot that is less. In this case, more is definitely a bore.

Coordinator trades job for family time

By Darcey Ralls
Staff Writer

Myron Mayberry, coordinator of college retention programs, resigned from OKCCC July 6.

Mayberry had worked for the college for just over four years.

He said he enjoyed the time he spent working with students.

"I've been extremely fortunate to work with the students at OKCCC," he said.

Mayberry said he left so he could spend more time with his wife Tausha and his one-year-old son, Ethan Myles.

Mayberry is the owner of an independent consulting firm, MT Consulting Service, Incorporated.

"We do project management and evaluation as well as policy analysis and research," Mayberry said.

He said he plans to devote time to his company and finish his doctorate at the University of Oklahoma.

After graduating from OU,

Mayberry said, he will hold a doctorate in institutional psychology and technology.

He said he eventually plans to teach at an institute of higher education.

Snap-On donates auto equipment

By Melissa Guice
Editor

OKCCC automotive students will have about $150,000 of donated equipment to work with starting in the fall.

Snap-On/Sun Corporation, a branch of Snap-On Corporation, will provide the automotive diagnostic equipment as a result of a newly-established partnership with OKCCC.

The partnership allows Snap-On/Sun to use the college's facilities as a place to house their equipment and train their employees about three or four days out of the month.

On the other end of the deal, the college's students will get to use the equipment the rest of the time.

The equipment consists of automotive diagnostic tools — computerized tools that can analyze and diagnose malfunctions on vehicles.

Larry Grummer, OKCCC automotive coordinator, said the agreement is a good deal.

"Snap-On is a world leader in the automotive industry, and we're going to get to use their equipment," Grummer said.

"I'm glad we got to snatch it up."

The equipment will be rotated out about every four to six months, Grummer said, allowing students to be constantly in touch with the latest automotive equipment.

"We're getting a chance to better serve our students," he said. "They'll be exposed to the newest and latest equipment out on the market."

While an exact schedule of Snap-On time versus OKCCC time on the equipment has not been arranged, Grummer said a meeting to discuss the details will take place in August.

The school has already received some of the equipment and is expecting more later this summer and into the fall.

"Snap-On is a world leader in the automotive industry, and we're going to get to use their equipment."

Highlights

A time to sing for OKCCC students

Auditions for OKCCC choirs will be held Aug. 23 through 26 in room 1C5 on the first floor of the Arts and Humanities building. OKCCC offers many different choirs to suit a variety of student needs. Financial aid is available for eligible chamber singers. For more information or to sign up for an audition time, call 682-1611 ext. 7245.

Balloon Fest '99 needs volunteers

Volunteers are still needed for Balloon Fest '99, a three-day event with hot-air balloons, games and other entertainment. The event, Aug. 13 through the 15, will be at Wiley Post Airport in northwest Oklahoma City and will benefit the Oklahoma City Food Bank. Volunteers are needed for concession stands, the children's activity tent, lost and found, ticket taking, balloon crews and other areas. For more information, call the food bank at 236-8349 or visit www.balloonfest.com.

Fun camps for kids offered at college

OKCCC's Office of Recreation and Community Services is offering informative summer camps for kids and teens.

The Art and Cartooning Camp, offered for kids age 6 to 16 years, will be held July 12 through the 15. Kids will explore the world of art by learning to paint with watercolors and tempera, sketching and shading, elements of light and shadow and composition and perspective. Sessions will be held from 9 a.m. to noon for youngsters ages 6 to 10 and from 1 to 4 p.m. for teens ages 11 to 16. Cost is $45 plus a $5 supply fee.

The Computer Graphics Camp, for teens ages 12 and older, provides a hands-on introduction to computer-aided design, applications and learning how to create basic 3-D drawings. The camp will be held Aug. 2 through 5. Cost for the camp is $135.

For more information about the kids camps, call Jonie Welle at 682-7560.

Continuing education offered for insurance agents

The Training Center at OKCCC is offering continuing education opportunities for life and accident/health insurance agents. The Oklahoma Insurance Department approves the courses for credit toward license renewal.

"Professional Ethics" is scheduled will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Friday, July 30. The course is worth two continuing education credit hours at a cost of $25.

"Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, Update June 4, 1998" will be offered from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, July 31. It is approved for six hours of continuing education credit at a cost of $45.

"Trusts Used in Estate Planning," worth four hours of continuing education credit, will be presented from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 1. Cost for this course is $30.

Registration in all 12 hours is offered for only $75. Pre-registration is required. For more information or to register, call The Training Center at 682-7562.

"I don't do weekends."

Because working part-time at UPS...I don't have to. They have five-day schedules that leave your weekends free. That is plenty of time to study or go out with friends. And I make plenty too... almost $10,000 a year working about 4 hours a day. UPS knows students value time as much as money. So if you don't do weekends, do contact UPS.

"I don't have to be here all the time — I can come when it's convenient."

As far as the overall numbers go, OKCCC's female population is just about the same when compared to last summer while the number of male students has slightly increased over last year.

Barker said the increase in male students was consistent with a trend noted in earlier semesters.

Of the 4,834 summer students, females still outnumber males 58 to 42 percent.

Pertaining to age, OKCCC's average summer student's age is about 27.

The majority of the summer students — 45 percent — are between the ages of 18 and 22.

About 22 percent of the students are between the ages of 23 and 27.

Those aged 28 to 37 make up about 18 percent.

Those aged 38 or older make up the remaining 14 percent.

Those attending classes part-time outrank full-timers nearly 63 percent to 37 percent.

Forty-three percent of students attend only in the daytime while 33 percent attend exclusively evening courses.

Students who attend the combination of day and night courses make up the remaining 24 percent.

Preliminary figures for the fall indicate an increase, as well, Barker said.

As a result, students are encouraged to enroll as soon as possible in order to help ensure that the classes they want will be available at the desired times.

Meeting of the minds...

In June, local international business development agencies organized a luncheon at OKCCC to promote a trade mission to Europe from Sept. 18 to Oct. 1.

Business leaders who participate will tour France, Germany and Poland as a way to reach the global marketplace.
